DISA THURESON grew up in Tyresö, Sweden. In 2005, she was admitted to the degree program in civil engineering and urban management at the KTH Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm, Sweden, and in 2010 she received her Degree of Master of Science in Engineering. She has been employed at the Swedish National Road and Transport Research Institute since 2010 and was admitted to the PhD program in Economics at Örebro University in 2011. In 2012, she received her Degree of Licentiate of Philosophy in Economics.

The present dissertation is dedicated to improvement of the current practice of cost-benefit analysis for long-term public investments, as well as to enhance the understanding of mechanisms in such models.